I SING BEIJING

May 29, 2013

Dear Fans and Friends of I SING BEIJING,

A sudden turn of events has caused us to cancel I SING BEIJING's 2013 program. With the program's growing success over the last few years, our recent American debut at Lincoln Center, the unprecedented excitement and enthusiasm for the program, it took great courage to decide to cancel this summer's session

It was a difficult decision and we are most sensitive to the group of talented singers who were selected for this year's program. Our Artistic Director, Hao Jiang Tian, who conceived and founded this program with the support of the Asian Performing Arts Council and the Hanban/Confucius Institute, worked day and night to find a way to keep the program alive this summer.

In the end, although the news is not good, we feel confident that over the next months we will work to develop stronger funding strategies and solidify our program structure so that we can come back with an even better program. When that time comes, please rest assured that this unique program will continue to pique the imagination and break new grounds.

We remain deeply committed to the mission and founding philosophy behind I SING BEIJING and are indebted to our many supporters and fans around the world.

We thank you for your enthusiasm and support. Stay tuned with us on Facebook for the latest developments.

With best wishes from the I SING BEIJING faculty and staff,

Martha Liao
President
Asian Performing Arts Council
Executive Director
